

Exploring the California MISSIONS

— What's in the Lunchbox? —

In order to find out about people
from the past...

historians look at their stuff

Imagine you found...

A large, irregular thought bubble shape outlined in a thick orange line. Inside the bubble, the text "a lunchbox" is written in a bold, black, sans-serif font. At the bottom left of the main bubble, there are three smaller circles of increasing size, also outlined in orange, arranged in a diagonal line.

a lunchbox

Tofu salad (unopened)

Snickers wrapper

Half an apple

Bottle of chocolate milk (empty)

What would these items
tell you about the owner?

Tofu salad (unopened)

+

Snickers wrapper

+

Half an apple

+

Bottle of chocolate milk (empty)

The Huntington is rich in primary sources.
Please extend your explorations by exploring our website or visiting The Huntington soon.

THE HUNTINGTON
Library, Art Collections, and Botanical Gardens